RE: Subject: Cure Response for CORA Request C 26-12 – Microsoft 365 Audit Logs

This response is intended to cure the Town's prior response to CORA Request C 26-12, regarding Microsoft 365 audit logs.

After your response to the Town's initial production, and after further consultation with our IT support, we determined how to pull the complete Microsoft 365 audit logs responsive to your request. In doing so, we also discovered that four audit log exports were generated separately from their corresponding monthly logs. These separate exports each covered only a few days. They were separated from the monthly logs because an export error repeatedly occurred during the Microsoft 365 audit log export process, which affected those records being included in the original monthly export.

The Town has now located, reviewed, and redacted the complete responsive audit logs, including those four separate audit log files.

Since you objected to a blanket redaction approach, I completed a more detailed and time-consuming redaction review. The redactions applied were limited to security-sensitive technical identifiers and values, including:

- OAuth tokens and bearer-token style values;
- unique token identifiers;
- immutable IDs;
- correlation IDs;
- GUID-style identifiers;
- application IDs, client application IDs, API IDs, and similar system identifiers;
- TaskList values;
- other unique security-sensitive identifiers that could expose Microsoft 365 system, application, session, or authentication details.

The Town preserved the substantive audit log information, including timestamps, operations/events, workloads, user activity context, and Town email addresses where applicable.

Because the incomplete initial production resulted from the Town not knowingly pulling the complete responsive records the first time, there will be no additional charge for this corrected production of the complete Microsoft 365 audit logs originally requested. Please note, however, that future records requests requiring this level of Microsoft 365 audit log review and detailed redaction will be charged at the Town's normal applicable rate for staff time and redaction review.
